The University of Nottingham Ningbo China (UNNC) has been at the cutting edge of international education in China since 2004, when it was the first Sino-foreign University to open its doors in China. We have around 880 teaching, research and professional services staff at UNNC, recruited from top universities, research institutes and companies from at least 40 countries worldwide.

The Teacher Training and Consultancy for Schools Programme are jointly implemented by our School of Education and English (EDEN) and Centre of English language Education (CELE). UNNC delivers world-class consultancy and training programs to the Chinese education sector, with a particular emphasis on International and Bilingual schools. Our goal is to use our extensive experience and expertise in internationalised education to make a meaningful contribution to Chinese society. To date, UNNC has trained thousands of teachers, education professionals and school managers, and we will continue to share our education consultation and curriculum development resources.
